

HOMECOMING READY NEXT WEEK

Mokena PTA To Finish Play Ground, Need Help

The Mokena Parent-Teacher Association had a special meeting Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing the finishing of the west end of the school grounds, to make of it a permanent play ground for the children of the community. Previously, this spot has not been used because of the weeds and mud.

Recently the PTA had two-thirds of this plot of ground graded and leveled with the idea of flooding it for ice skating this winter. This was done at a cost of $90.00, which went to defray the cost of fuel and labor in operating the machines. Much labor has been given free which allowed for such a fine piece of work to be done at a minimum cost.

After this much of the work was done, the local citizens became interested, enough so, to want to have this plot finished with a permanent foundation that will be practical for all sports and at the same time keep the children out of the mud. This work needs to be done now, before school starts. In order to do so, the PTA has assumed the responsibility of going ahead and finishing these play grounds, with the hope of receiving outside financial help. It will require from $500 to $1500 to finish these grounds as they should be.

A committee composed of Robert Geuther, Lawrence Kohl, Elmer Cooper and Mrs. Ludwig Thiel, was appointed to secure expert advice on what is the most practical year-round play ground. They will inspect other such grounds in Will and Cook Counties and meet with engineers in this line of construction. They were given full power to go ahead and make arrangements to the work that they are advised to do. Another committee was appointed composed of Mrs. J. L. Doyle, Elmer Cooper, Lawrence Kohl and Mrs. H. Luplow. They are to solicit the people of this community for financial aid to do this work, after it has been agreed upon the type of work to be done and ascertained the cost.

It is hoped that every one approached by this committee will give generously, as this is a well worth while project and one needed very much in this expanding area, and when finished, one this community can be proud of. As information is gathered on this project, it will be given to the public thru the columns of this paper. Watch for it and be informed at all times.

ESCAPED DEATH MIRACULOUSLY IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Helman and sons Nick and Richard left Mokena last Friday morning for a motor trip to Colorado. That evening they reached Red Oak, Iowa where they had rooms in the hotel. They left the hotel at 5:15 Saturday morning and had gone about 11 miles on route 34, when they became involved in a serious accident.

A driver ahead of them had been acting rather queer, and Mr. Helman who was driving sought to pass the car, but in doing so, the head car always speeded up and would not allow the passing. When there was again a good straight road ahead, with no cars in sight Mr. Helman again tried to pass, when again the head car speeded up, and in some way, the Helman car went into the ditch along side the road, and hit a rut in the ditch, threw the car back upon the pavement again. At the same time another car was approaching. Both drivers tried hard not to collide. Mr. Helman succeeded in pulling his car enough off the road so that when they met they side swiped each other, and avoided a head on collision.

The driver of the on coming car was Mr. Alvin Goetsch of Red Oak, Iowa, driving a Plymouth '41 and Mr. Helman's car was a Plymouth '36. Both cars were completely demolished but no one was injured. The car ahead of the Helman car drove away as fast as possible.

The sheriff was called and all were taken back to Red Oak from where the Helman's finally left for home by train, arriving here Sunday morning. They are very thankful no one was killed.

This land has a frontage of 600 feet and is 182 feet deep. Mr. Brownlee expects to build a home there when material is available.

On the north of the village of Mokena activities are also beginning to show forth. In the Bartlett subdivision made of the Irvin Marti and Hirsch farms, streets are being laid out and graded and lots are being marked off.

At the Village Board meeting last week two pieces of property were vacated. The house owned by Geo. Wannemacher occupied by Francis Rinke, was really on an alley.

And the ground just west of Wm. Hellenhouse's blacksmith shop on the south side of Front street also is on an alley as laid out originally. SPECTRE OF ANOTHER WAR
EN ROUTE TO PARIS. — Underway in the palace of Luxembourg is the conference on which so many mothers set their hearts, for which so many mothers' sons gave their lives — the conference to win the peace.

Some 13,000,000 men in the American armed forces alone fought four long years—with the hope that it might be the last time human beings would have to go through the terrible ordeal of war.

In the Paris conference comes the climax of their dreams, and already disillusionment has begun to set in. Already the dreams are tinged with nightmare — the spectre of another war.

Here are some of the distressing facts this conference has to face in trying to chart the peace of the world:

1. Historians criticized Woodrow Wilson because he was slow in negotiating peace. But he got started two months after the armistice and finished six months later, a total of eight months after the war. In contrast, it is now almost one year after the armistice with Japan and 15 months after the armistice with Germany, yet the final peace conference is only getting started.

2. The longer peace is delayed, the more the Allies fall out; the more the other nations forget their gratitude. So the longer the delay, the harder it is to negotiate a permanent peace.

3. Russia deliberately has endeavored to postpone the peace. This conference could have been held long ago if the Soviet had not said no.

DELAY TACTICS PLANNED

Moscow's delay tactics were by no means accidental. They were carefully planned, and with three motives behind them:

A. The longer peace was delayed the more time Russia got to nail down its hold on the Balkan satellites — Hungary, Austria. Anti-Russian factions had to be stamped out; pro-Russian factions trained to carry on. This could not be done overnight.

B. The more uncertainty and unrest occurred in the non-Soviet-occupied countries — France, Belgium, the Netherlands — the greater the likely growth of Communism.

C. Finally, Moscow did not want the Red armies converging back to Russia. There wasn't food to feed them, and their quick return risked economic, political turnovers.

Thus, ever since V-J Day, Russia has been the greatest obstacle to early peace.

AMERICANS NOT BLAMELESS

In this peace conference, however, not everything is black or white. There is some gray shading in between.

And in real fact, American diplomacy during the early stages of this greatest of all diplomatic endeavors was just as guilty of sabotaging the peace as the Russians—perhaps more so. I say more so, because we pride ourselves on being more advanced, more alert, more idealistic.

Yet actually, our diplomats were just as woefully unprepared for peace as the army and navy were for war at Pearl Harbor. When it should have been ready for the most important peace offensive in history of the world, the state department was caught completely napping.

Congress has spent several months of intensive study to ascertain who was responsible for Pearl Harbor; yet no one has lifted a finger to probe the equally important disaster of our unpreparedness for peace.

If senators probed the files of the state department, or even their own files, significant facts would come to light.

OUT-TRUMANS TRUMAN

Capital observers credit Sen. Jim Mead of New York with a new investigating verve which may out-Truman Truman. . . . Significant new venture in radio: 350 local streetcar and traction companies throughout the U. S. are inaugurating a coast-to-coast radio program. Working under American Transit association, they represent 23 billion annual streetcar riders. . . . No men from the Dallas naval air station were permitted to attend church the other Sunday. Officially speaking, they were not barred from attending church, merely barred from taking a bus into town. Since there was no chaplain at the station, it amounted to the same thing. Lieut. Comdr. Leif Johnson issued the order.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Assistant Secretary of State Bill Benton leaves soon on a good-will tour of Latin America. . . . U. S. broadcasters over 10 transmitters to Soviet Russia now are giving the common people of Russia the truth about the news. . . . Maxim Litvinov was considered for Russian ambassador to Argentina. However, Stalin decided Litvinov's appointment would arouse American suspicions. . . . Jim Newman, who piloted the McMahon bill in congress, resigns soon.

NEITHER MAJOR PARTY HAS A CLEAR-CUT PLATFORM

I TALKED RECENTLY with two representatives of the people in congress. One a Republican, the other a Democrat. Both are candidates for re-election. During their service in congress neither has, at all times, voted with the majority of his party. The Republican told me he differed radically with some of his party leaders; that his views on major issues did not match the views of some other Republicans; that he could not present his views as representing anything more than himself; he could not speak for the party on anything other than a general condemnation of the opposition. He said the party has established no policies. If elected, as he expects to be, it will be because a majority of the voters of the district believe in his ability to best represent them. He will feel under no obligation to support any set of policies because the party has enunciated none.

The Democratic candidate told me much of the same thing. He said that during his two years in the house he had been entirely "on his own" in determining what proposed legislation to support, and what to oppose, for the party, as such, did not prescribe any policies those elected on the Democratic ticket were expected to follow, and there were no policies prescribed for the future. The party label is meaningless as a guide to the voter. The choice is between candidates rather than between parties.

Such are the conditions on the eve of an unusually important national election. The voters have no assurance they will get from either party what they, as individuals, believe is best for the nation. Some Republicans voted to continue OPA; others to kill it. The same situation is found among those elected on the Democratic ticket. What was true of OPA has been true of many other issues.

Not one in a hundred of the voters of a state or district has an acquaintance with, or a personal knowledge of, the candidates on either ticket for either senator or representative. The party label tells them nothing, and the voters must go blindfolded to the polls because the directing leaders of both parties cannot agree on what basic principles the party should endorse. Political fear is at the bottom of it all; fear of offending some minority; fear of losing a few votes.

The basis of our government by the people is the two-party system, but that system becomes valueless when the parties refuse to provide for the voters any statement of the principles for which they stand. The party label does not provide a guide. He can only vote blindly for candidates. The election is not a contest between the Republican and Democratic parties; it is a contest between the Bill Smiths and the Ed Joneses.

SEAS NO LONGER PROTECT US

FROM THE TIME George Washington admonished the young nation to beware of European entanglements to the day when President Wilson asked congress for a declaration of war against Germany, that admonition of Washington's had been the guiding principle of our foreign policy; that plus the Monroe Doctrine. For more than a century we had felt secure behind our ocean barriers, both to the East and West.

Today those ocean barriers do not provide the security they once did. Science has demolished them with rockets, capable of a speed faster than sound, carrying a threat of destruction not only to our long sea coasts, but also to every part of the nation. For the future we must face the possibility of atomic bombs being hurled at us from any part of the world. We cannot again ignore the rest of the world. Isolation no longer can be an American policy. We must do our full part to subdue or control the passions that for centuries have affected Europe. We must have a foreign policy that recognizes new conditions. It should be a policy of world leadership, as we are today the greatest, and no longer the youngest or weakest, of the world nations.

MANAGEMENT insists production is the proper basis of wages; labor says it is profits. Fact is production leads to profits, and profits is the more convenient measuring stick. Wages based on profits will encourage production.

did a commendable job of mobilizing the men and women of the armed forces. The same kind of a job is needed in the army of civilian clerks employed by both services. While the fighting forces have been demobilized, the desk forces have increased, and still are increasing. Those civilian employees doing manual labor have been released, but not those holding desk jobs. They are not asking to be discharged.

TREASURE OF THE SEA

BY George E. Walsh

WNU Release

THE STORY THUS FAR:

The crew of a small sailing vessel in the Caribbean pick up Dick Jordan, adrift on a raft. Dick realizes that he is among men who are virtually pirates. They come upon a drifting schooner, apparently a derelict. When two persons appear on the wallowing ship Tucu, the pirate captain, is disappointed. Demented Captain Bedford invites Tucu and his crew aboard, but his daughter Rose turns them back with her automatic. Dick swims to the schooner and aids Rose in the battle. Tucu withdraws, but Dick fears he will return during the night. They keep watch anxiously. A storm is brewing and it obscures the moon.

CHAPTER V

Dick walked slowly forward again, keeping a more watchful eye in the direction of the lugger, and listening for any strange sound. The lugger was invisible in the gloom, and he knew the Caribs would creep upon them without detection until within a few yards of the schooner. The danger of a surprise was growing with every minute.

Four times he made his circuit and met Rose, who reported everything quiet and peaceful aft. Then on the fifth round, he was delayed a little by a noise in the water that sounded suspicious. He waited to verify it, and then resumed his walk more hurriedly.

When he reached their meeting point, she was not in sight. He waited impatiently for her, but when she did not appear he grew anxious. There was a chance that his own delay had caused the trouble. She had not waited for him. Unwilling to go back until assured of her safety, he lingered until she appeared nearly ten minutes later.

"I missed you," he exclaimed in a whisper, "and couldn't go back until I was sure."

"You shouldn't have done that," she frowned. "Something may have happened forward while you were here."

"I'll hurry back," he replied in relief. "But wait for me on the next trip. I must know you're safe."

She nodded, and Dick hurried to make up for lost time. In his haste he was careless and tripped along with more speed than caution. He was still thinking of the girl when a black shadow rose up to confront him. Startled, and not sure that it wasn't an optical illusion, he paused instead of raising his gun to fire an alarm.

That momentary hesitation was his misfortune. By the time he was convinced a burly Carib was facing him on the deck of the schooner, two other dark forms had sprung out of the gloom back of him. Dick raised his gun to shoot, but a hand knocked it upward, while one of the long, powerful, hairy arms of Black Burley encircled his neck and crushed the wind out of him.

When Dick recovered, and his wits returned to him, the Caribs were in full possession of the schooner. He needed no further verification of this than his own helpless condition. Trussed up securely, he was lying on his back, with his face turned up to the moonless sky. Storm clouds were scurrying over his head, and the treacherous moon was still invisible.

Dick Stalls for Time By Bargaining

A foot prodded him in the ribs, and a black face was thrust into his. Dick recognized the crafty one of Captain Tucu, leering with triumph. "Ain't dead, I see," the half-breed gloated. "Y'want to be careful next time how y'hit that deck. It ain't a soft pillow."

Dick stared at him. "Where's Captain Bedford's daughter?" he asked. "Did she get hurt?"

Tucu smiled cruelly, realizing he had another weapon of torture in his hands. "She ain't dead neither," he grinned. "We're keepin' her in the cabin—me an' Black Burley."

The intended significance of the words aroused Dick to fury. "If you hurt her, Tucu," he said slowly, "or insult her you'll pay with your life. This is war between you and me. Leave her out of it."

"What'll y'do if I promise?" he asked, smiling wilyly.

"Anything you ask."

"Y'll stick to y'bargain, an' show me where them jewels was dropped overboard."

"Yes."

"Y'tried to trick me once," growled the other, "an' y'e'll do it again. Y'word ain't worth nothin'. I'd cut y'throat if I thought—"

"No, I didn't trick you," Dick interrupted. "I interfered only when you began war on a woman. That wasn't part of our bargain."

The half-breed paused, watching his prisoner with doubtful eyes. "I wasn't makin' no war on women," he said finally. "Cap'n Bedford invited me aboard his schooner, an' that—"

"He's crazy, you know. He wasn't responsible. The schooner was in command of his daughter."

"He ain't so crazy that he don't remember some things," was the retort. "Soon's we can find that treasure he's picked up, we'll leave."

"What treasure?"

Captain Tucu winked and laughed. "Y'don't know nothin' 'bout it, I suppose. 'Tain't likely y'heard him, an' his daughter ain't said nothin' to ye."

Dick was puzzled and mystified. He shook his head finally. "I don't know what you're talking about. If there's any treasure on the schooner, I don't know of it."

Tucu was unconvinced. "Y'lay there an' think about it. Mebbe y'll remember, or we'll find it."

When he walked away in the gloom, Dick had ample opportunity to reflect. There came to his mind a vague remembrance that in his crazy chatter Captain Bedford had made reference to a prize—a treasure—he had found.

If Tucu believed there was any treasure hidden on the schooner, he would search for it, spend days overhauling every part of the craft. This would cause further delay, and time was precious. Any hour or day a ship might cross their path, and he might not be able to signal for help.

He concluded finally to favor the idea that there was something of value aboard, and that Captain Bedford had hidden it. By pretending that he and Rose knew of its existence, but couldn't locate it, they would gain time. With two treasures dangled before Tucu's eyes there was a possibility of eventually finding a way out of their troubles.

When Tucu appeared a few hours later, with the first streaks of dawn breaking in the east, Dick's mind was made up. He met the eyes of the old renegade with a look of complacency.

"Tucu," he said, "you've got me in your power, and there's no use fighting against fate. I'll make a new deal with you. Captain Bedford has enough loot aboard to make those smuggled jewels look like cheap imitations."

"Then it's a bargain?"

"Thought y'said there wasn't none," growled the man, scowling hard at his prisoner.

Dick smiled. "That was before I thought you knew," he replied. "I didn't want you to know of it. I thought I could get away with it. That's why I didn't want you to board the schooner."

"Y'wanted to get the treasure an' the girl?"

"Wasn't any harm in that, was there?" laughed Dick. "You'd do as much if you had the chance."

"Reckon I got 'em," leered the other.

"No," slowly, "you haven't. You've got the girl, but you haven't got the treasure."

"Reck'n one goes with the other. She'll tell when I want her to."

"No, she won't," replied Dick boldly, "for she doesn't know where it is."

"The hell she don't! Y're lyin' to me."

"All right!"—shrugging his shoulders. "Don't believe me. Ask her!"

The half-breed surveyed him quietly a moment, and then became convinced nothing was to be gained by stubbornness.

Threat of a Storm Forces Tucu's Hand

"If she don't know where it is, who does?" he demanded surlily.

"Captain Bedford, of course. He hid it in one of his crazy moments. His daughter knew where it was before that, but now she doesn't know any more than you do. Her father's so crazy we couldn't get the secret from him. We were trying hard when you came aboard. If we found it we intended to escape in the small boat, and leave the schooner to you."

"Y'ain't lyin' to me ag'in!" ejaculated Tucu, eyeing his prisoner suspiciously.

"When did I lie to you before?"

The other growled savagely, and made no reply. After a while, he asked: "What's this new deal y'had in mind? Spit it out."

"I wanted your word you wouldn't hurt Captain Bedford's daughter," replied Dick slowly. "If you promise not to harm her, we'll help you search for the treasure. If you find it we'll let you take it, if you leave the schooner to us. You don't want that. She's no good, and wouldn't be worth towing to port."

"Reck'n she ain't a bad prize," murmured Tucu reflectively. "We could get her to land if another storm didn't come up."

"But another storm is coming," interrupted Dick. "You're sailor enough to know that. Feel the air, and that wind—"

Tucu studied the leaden skies. "There may be another storm, an' there may be only a little squall," he said. "I ain't sayin' which."

"No, but you know which it is," smiled Dick. "It's a storm."

Tucu glanced uneasily around at the horizon again.

"Y'can't help any in searchin' the schooner," he decided finally. "But y'can lie here an' watch us."

"Then you don't agree to a new deal?"

"If we find the treasure you an' the girl can have the schooner," was the grinning retort. "Mebbe y'can ride out the storm an' to land. I'll leave y'on it."

"Then it's a bargain?"

The half-breed regarded him slowly before replying.

"Yes," he said finally, "after y' show me where them smuggled jewels is. Reck'n that's fair."

"You're not greedy, Captain Tucu, are you?" laughed Dick. "You want the treasure and the smuggled goods. What do I get?"

"The girl and the schooner," leered the other.

"And if the schooner goes down in the storm I lose both."

"No, y'can swim for it. Two on a raft's more comfortable than one, an' that's the way y'was when we picked y'up."

Dick nodded. He had gained his point. Nothing would happen to him or Rose while they searched the schooner for the mythical treasure.

In the meantime, almost anything might happen—a ship appear or a storm break.

"We'll call it a deal," he said finally.

His ready compliance awakened the other's suspicion.

"Y' got to help us in one way," he added. "You an' that girl's got to help us."

"How can we?"

"By wheedlin' it out of the captain. Mebbe he'll listen to his daughter."

"I don't know about that; but I'll promise to do what I can. Let me see her."

Tucu was still suspicious, but as there was no other way he finally decided to grant this request.

The sun was rising in the east when Dick was led by two of the Caribs to the captain's cabin.

His entrance into the cabin brought a little exclamation of delight from a dark corner. Rose Bedford came forward to greet him.

"Oh, they didn't kill you!" she exclaimed eagerly. "I was afraid they had."

"No, I got a knock on the head, but it didn't amount to much." He glanced around him. The cabin was empty except for his two captors and a third Carib on watch at the entrance. Tucu hadn't followed them. Dick took advantage of the opportunity to explain the situation to her. The Caribs didn't understand English.

"Rose," he said eagerly, "Tucu believes your father's got some sort of a treasure aboard the schooner, and he's after it. I told him I'd help him find it."

Instead of meeting him with glad eyes, her face darkened. Dick had an uncomfortable feeling that she was searching him with eyes of suspicion.

"I promised," he went on eagerly, "that we would help him search for the treasure."

"You promised that?" she repeated, slowly in a cold voice.

Rose is angered at Dick's Agreement

"Yes, to gain time," he continued. "While he's looking for the treasure we may plan some way of escape. Tucu won't leave until he's searched every part of the schooner, and that will take a day or two."

She was quiet a moment, her eyes vaguely restless and uncertain. Dick had the impression that she was worried.

"Why does Captain Tucu think there's any treasure on the schooner?" she asked slowly.

Dick chuckled. "From the ravings of your father. He heard him chatter about the prize he'd picked up."

"And do you think there's any?" she asked.

Dick was on the point of answering negatively when a queer expression in her eyes arrested him. He glanced soberly at her, and then instead of putting in a denial he countered with the question:

"Do you? Is there any treasure on board?"

She remained noncommittal, glancing from him to the two stalwart Caribs, whose sleepy eyes indicated no interest in the conversation. Dick became suddenly disturbed in mind. If there was any particular sum of money or gold or anything else of special value, he had not improved matters by telling Captain Tucu he would help him in the search for it. In fact, he felt that he had complicated the situation. From the accusing eyes of the girl, he began to feel guilty of having betrayed a secret.

"I didn't know there was anything, Rose," he said penitently. "I supposed your father's chatter was all moonshine. I'm sorry if I've—"

THERE is a pitcher we think is a trifle overlooked. We say that because all the ball players we've talked to lately rank him as the best in either league.

No—his name isn't Bob Feller or Spud Chandler or Tex Hughson. He is a wiry left-hander by the name of Harold Newhouser of the Tigers. Newhouser was the best pitcher in baseball in 1944 when he won 29 games.

They threw that one out. A war year.

Newhouser was the best pitcher in baseball last season when he won 25 games and took over the World series. They threw that one out, also. Another war year.

Wait until the big hitters come back, they said last spring—Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Dom DiMaggio, Bobby Doerr, Bill Dickey, Charlie Keller, all these and many others. So what happens? Newhouser has been winning six times out of seven.

And Newhouser has been winning these games with a third-place ball club—a ball club that without Newhouser would be in fifth place. Newhouser was the best pitcher in baseball in 1944 and 1945. It is our prediction that he also will be the best pitcher in baseball in the current season of 1946.

It's Newhouser, 9 to 1

We decided to make a fuller check on Newhouser in his own league. We took a survey from 10 well-known veterans who know their way around. Nine gave us Newhouser, one gave us Bob Feller.

I asked Bill Dickey what he thought about the matter. The Arkansas quail hunter gave us a slow smile. "I'm already in enough trouble," he said, "without getting into another argument. When I came back to baseball this spring, I heard that Newhouser was just another wartime pitcher."

"Our league happens to be well stocked with fine pitchers. I mean Chandler, Hughson, Ferris, Harris, Trucks, Kramer and a few more. But so far I haven't seen a better pitcher than Newhouser. You know how hard it is to win 20 games. Newhouser has won 54 in the last two years. It wouldn't surprise me to see him win 30 or more this year."

"What has he got? About all it takes. A good fast ball. A good curve ball. Good control. A lot of confidence in himself. Determination to win. A good head. Plenty of heart."

Unless something disastrous happens suddenly, it is a pretty safe bet that Hal Newhouser will lead both leagues on the pitching side. It is also a pretty fair bet that he will pass the 25-game mark again and threaten the 30 spot, which few have ever reached.

Two 40-Game Winners

So far as so-called modern baseball goes the only 40-game winners I can recall at the moment happen to be Ed Walsh and Jack Chesbro. Among the 30-or-more game winners, we've had Matty, Johnson, Smokey Joe Wood, Dizzy Dean, Grover Alexander, Lefty Grove and possibly one or two others. Only Matty and Alexander have won 30 or more games three times, in the past 40 years. You can let us know if our memory is slipping.

Newhouser has yet to be a 30-game winner. But the willowy Tiger left-hander has the best chance to reach this mark for 1946. He comes so close to being the best pitcher in the game that someone else will need a spur to crowd him back before the stretch run ends in September.

Bob Feller, Spud Chandler and Tex Hughson are all great pitchers. Among the best. But all three will have to put on extra steam to crowd back Newhouser, who has been baseball's best pitcher for three years.

About the Two Leagues

Several querulous letters have come in since the all-star game asking what has happened to the veteran circuit.

"Why is it," one asked, "that the American league should come up with most of the top stars—such men as Ted Williams, Charlie Keller, Bob Feller, Newhouser, Chandler and so many others who apparently outclass most of the National league's best men?"

The sad facts—sad for the N. L.—are that the older league this season can match the younger circuit neither in stars, nor in average playing strength. The N. L. has no pitchers to rank with Feller, Newhouser, Chandler, Hughson and others. Outside of Johnny Mize it has no power hitters who can be classed with Williams, Greenberg, Keller, DiMaggio and several more. This was all known before.

It would have taken a Carl Hubbell, a Dizzy Dean, a Matty or an Alexander to remove the noise from A. L. bats this season.

JESUS AND THE SACREDNESS OF HUMAN LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5:21-24; 10:29-31; 18:10-14.
MEMORY SELECTION—But I say unto you, That whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment.—Matthew 5:22.

Human life is sacred, and that is not primarily because of any law of man, but because God created man in his own likeness and image.

Since that is true, no man has any right to take the life of another for any cause except at the direct command of God. Only by the orderly process of law for the protection of society and in accordance with the Word of God may there be any such action by man toward man.

Both of these truths are declared in Scripture in God's covenant with Noah (Gen. 9:5, 6), which was made possibly a thousand years before the Ten Commandments were given to Moses.

I. The Prohibition of Murder (Exod. 20:13).

The word "kill" in this commandment is one which means a violent and unauthorized taking of life, and is therefore more properly translated "murder."

Not all killing is murder. A man may kill another entirely accidentally, or he may be the duly constituted legal officer carrying out the law of the land in taking the life of one who has forfeited his right to live because he has slain another.

There is also the right of self-defense, be it individual or collective as in war. But these are the only exceptions; let us not attempt to justify any other.

Murder is more prevalent than most of us suppose. In 1944 there was a murder every fifty minutes in our land.

Do not forget the deaths, the destruction of life, by avoidable automobile accidents. Some of these were really murder because the one responsible drove with defective brakes, dangerous tires, or while he was intoxicated. Add to these the deaths in industry caused by failure to provide proper safeguards or healthy working conditions, and by the exploitation of child labor, and we say that we should cry aloud, "Thou shalt do no murder."

II. The Provocation to Murder (Matt. 5:21, 22).

Murder finds its provoking cause in the heart of man. Our Lord was concerned about correcting the desires rather than to apprehend the offender after the act had been committed. It is the better way, and the more effective one.

In this matter of murder, Jesus cut right through the outward aspects of the matter and pointed out that an angry hatred in the heart is the root of all murder. If we hate, we have murder in our hearts. Circumstances may hinder its fulfillment, but the danger is always there until we remove the cause.

May God help those of us who have strong feelings that we may not yield them to the devil in such anger against our brother!

III. The Prevention of Murder (Matt. 5:23, 24; 10:29-31; 18:10-14).

Prevention with God means more than putting up a barrier to try to keep men from killing one another. He deals with the heart of man, and when that is right the whole life will be right. There must be

1. A Right View of Self (Matt. 5:23, 24). We must learn by prayer and humility of heart to suffer at the hands of others, to keep peace, to seek our brother's welfare.

Note that it is not even a question of how we may feel against our brother. If he has aught against us we are to do all we can to win him.

We who believe in Christ are to be in deed as well as word the children of our heavenly Father (Matt. 5:45), loving not only those who are kind to us but also our enemies.

2. A Right View of God (Matt. 10:29-31). He who knows when a sparrow falls to the ground is concerned about the smallest detail of our lives. No man can lay hands of violence on another man without having to reckon with God about his misdeeds.

Our God is not afar off and too concerned with eternal affairs to be interested in the sufferings of the individual. He is here now, and we should count him into every relationship of life.

3. A Right View of Man (Matt. 18:10-14). Even the little ones, apparently defenseless and at the mercy of a cruel world, have guardian angels who have access to the throne of God. He has a special interest in the lost and rejoices in the rescue of the one who has strayed, so we see that even those whom the world regards as weak and unimportant are in the mind of God for good. He watches over them.

The man who sees himself for what he is, and who realizes what God thinks of man, will find that he agrees with the command of God, "Thou shalt not kill."

Household Hints

To remove dust from wall paper, wipe with a soft wall brush or soft cloth. Hard rubbing will stain and roughen the paper.

Tip on painting: Don't overload brush, dip it one-third its length and keep the can about half full.

It is easier to iron dresses and blouses in this order: sleeves back, front and collar.

Heavy roof paint applied to inside of metal gutters will prevent rusting for a long time.

Late fall is regarded as the best time to do house painting, for by then the long summer sun has removed all moisture from the wood.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 11, was:

"SPIRIT"

The Golden Text was:

"I have poured out my spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord God" (Ezek. 39: 29).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, with all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love; Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace . . . Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ" (Eph. 4: 1-3, 13).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Whatever is false or sinful can never enter the atmosphere of Spirit. There is but one Spirit. Man is never God, but spiritual man, made in God's likeness, reflects God. In his scientific reflection the Ego and the Father are inseparable . . . The scientific unity which exists between God and man must be wrought out in life-practice, and God's will must be universally done . . . When the divine precepts are understood, they unfold the foundation of fellowship, in which one mind is not at war with another, but all have one Spirit, God, one intelligent source, in accordance with the Scriptural command: 'Let this Mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus'" (pp. 70, 202, 276).

Boy's Room - Modern Style

A couple of young roughnecks would have to work pretty hard to mar these walls, batter the furniture or soil the bedspreads in the durable bed-sitting room shown above as pictured in the May issue of House Beautiful magazine. Walls and curtains are fabric-coated in "Koroseal"—dust-resistant, stainproof and washable. Chairs and desk are tough oak. Rough dark green carpet and box spring beds covered in the same color corduroy won't show soil or scuffing.

SIX TONS OF DISHES WASHED
IN AVERAGE HOME ANNUALLY

Accelerated Salvaging of Household Fat Makes Possible
Present Supplies of Soap for This and Other Household Chores

It has been calculated that every American housewife washes six tons of dishes every year! Add up the accumulation from 365 breakfasts, luncheons, dinners and in-between snacks and the total would fill six trucks, experts say.

Staggering as the task of washing six tons of dishes sounds, imagine how much more impossible the job would be without soap! The prospect of a soap-less life is not on the horizon, however, as long as housewives keep up their present rate of salvaging fat.

Department of Agriculture authorities point out that if it had not been for salvaged fat in 1945, housewives would have had 13 per cent less soap. Even so there are not enough industrial fats and oils available to meet the demand for soaps and other goods the public wants.

Help Yourself

Every time you turn in a pound of fats to your meat dealer you are actually helping yourself and your neighbors by relieving the shortage not only of soap but also of scarce items like table linen, draperies, floor coverings, even possibly some more nylons.

Food experts too are urging fat conservation! Use and reuse every drop and ounce of beef, bacon and even lamb fat when you're cooking, they say. Then, when you've had all the food value of your fat, turn in the drippings and scrapings for salvage.

The 800,000,000 people starving in Europe and Asia are scavenging in garbage cans for grease that many an American family washes down the drain. Fats are scarce everywhere. We, as a nation, must be careful not to waste material, which if properly used would save human lives in some other country and add to comfort in our own. Remember your annual six tons of dishes.

One Pound Helps

Sixteen tablespoonsful of used fat makes a pound. One pound of used cooking fat turned over to a meat dealer helps relieve the shortage of industrial fats and frees enough soap fats to help make a box of packaged laundry soap, or six bars of laundry soap, or five bars of toilet soap.

The lady engineer and general manager of such a household therefore can save and salvage enough used cooking fat to take care of her dishwashing needs.

Remember that in addition to dishes, literally tons of clothes need washing every year—miles of woodwork and linoleum must be scrubbed and it all takes mountains of soap. Sit down and figure out the amount of soap . . . and the amount of fat . . . required to keep your household clean.

Supplies Never Lower

Supplies of edible and inedible fats and oils all over the world have never been as low as they are today. Fats and oils imports to the U. S. are still only a shadow of their pre-war tonnage. The only tangible way to get more raw materials for soap making and other essentials is by turning in more used cooking fat.

Continued conservation of every drop of used cooking fat will prevent shorter supplies of soap. Accelerated fat salvage—the skimming of soups, scraping of pans, rendering of raw and cooked fat—means improvement in soap supply, a little easement in the household burden of six tons of dishes every year.

Important Information Of Chicagoland Area

(The growth and development of our territory concerns us all. We are a part of the growing, expanding northeastern Illinois. At the request of several editors, Justus L. Johnson prepared an article on this subject. It is full of practical foresight and realism which calls for our participation and cooperation. Long associated in programs for the development of the Fox River valley, Mr. Johnson has a background of experience and observation of wide application to our enlarging opportunity.)

By Justus L. Johnson,
Chairman City Planning Commission,
Aurora

Northeastern Illinois led the country in industrial expansion during the past year. Ninety nine plant additions were contractor for, which was more than twice as many as the second ranking area of Los Angeles, Calif., according to the report of the Territorial Information department.

Chicago and Cook county have about 4,200,000 population. The counties that border on Cook and those bisected by the Fox river in Illinois, have about 800,000 inhabitants, so that the northeastern corner of the state has approximately 5 million people, which is more than 60 percent of the population of Illinois.

Population increases must spread west, northwest and southwest from Lake Michigan. The urge is constant for people to make their homes where nature has provided beautiful surroundings. The city population is spilling out over the country areas. The outer perimeter of the beauty spots for this congestion is the Fox and Kankakee rivers.

The Chicago Regional Plan Commission has greatly aided in planning the areas within Cook and contiguous counties. The Post War Planning Commission of the state of Illinois is now engaged in making a master plan for the development of the Fox River valley from the Wisconsin line to Ottawa, where it empties into the Illinois river. This larger river itself gives connecting water transportation between the lakes and the Mississippi, which furnishes an ocean outlet.

Some of the conditions that make for expansion and growth are so commonplace that they are often overlooked. Chicago is the rail center of the country. Air and motor transportation are fast making the same pattern. Water freight service is open to the ocean by two routes. No other area offers such great advantages as a distributing center. In a troubled world, the Chicago area also offers the safest place for great capital outlays, 1,000 miles of land defense east and 2,000 miles west, over seacoast cities. All production facilities, both manufacturing and agricultural, are the most diversified on the continent. Nearly every skill necessary to carry on a business or production already exists in this northeast corner of the state. Because income is derived from so many different sources this area has a highly developed balanced economy. There is a sizeable mining operation in coal and clay. Sand and gravel are present in nearly every township, which is of great value for construction needs. The pool of labor is sufficient for any expansion. The balanced rainfall has made in an area of no crop failures.

Needs Well Balanced
All the needs of society are so well balanced in this area that it is a challenge to anyone desiring good living conditions or the establishment of a business or industry. Balanced seasons the best mean annual temperature, great natural beauty, and an even, balanced seasonal rainfall, help to create and maintain energetic minds and bodies. The production of foods and materials are near the processing locations. The greatest distribution center on the continent and one of the world's outstanding cultural and research centers enhances an ever growing community.

Lakes, rivers, forest tracts and outdoor recreational opportunities add something of tranquility to man's soul which better fits him for his work. Another well recognized fact is that the four seasons, changing through the year, has a great bearing on his energy output and mental attitudes. This northern part of Illinois is located in the isotherm which has produced the highest production levels thru out all the ages. This may have varied on other continents as to the same latitude because of ocean currents and prevailing winds, but the productive areas in Asia, Europe, and the southern continents exist where the mean annual temperature is nearest like our own.

Where great cities have come into being, they have existed on the exploitation of others and not on their own production. When employers are making a study of locations they usually give weight to the productive energy and skills that prevail in the area. It is a well known fact that the efficient-cy of production essens from 1 to 1 1/2 percent per degree as you move away from the balanced climate of the 150-

Large Opportunities

When the people of northern Illinois recognize fully the many advantages that are theirs every citizen will become vocal in calling to the attention of others the larger opportunity that exists here.

Lake Michigan bars the flow of increased population to the east—it must extend itself west, northwest and south west from the Chicago area. There will be great need for non-intercepting, super highways, to serve these sections. The blueprints are ready and construction is planned. There must be opportunity for free flow of motor vehicles to the business center.

The waterway division of the Illinois department of public works is now completing surveys of the Fox river for water control and minimum navigation. The Post War Planning Commission is outlining possible developments for a stretch of at least 10 miles wide along the river and in some areas, on feeder stream controls and possible flood control dams that will make impounded lakes. Aerial photographs to scale are being used to advantage. When the master plan has been completed it will be a guide for all cities and park districts thru which the Fox river flows.

Given Authority

One of the park acts for the creation of new districts has been amended to give authority to such districts on submerged lands. This will give opportunity for pleasure driveways along river fronts.

Every county, city and town in this northeastern section of Illinois should be awake to its great opportunities. Planning and zoning commissions and park districts may be of advantage. The communities that offer the best conditions of living are the ones that will receive the greatest development and make a selection of the kind of people that will be added to their population. The cities and towns that merely grow up helter-skelter will be at a disadvantage. It would be well if civic minded organizations take on a responsibility for these future developments. There should be close coordination with the Chicago Regional Plan authorities, with the Fox River Development program, sponsored by the Post War Planning Commission, and with any regional agency that will be helpful in making a coordinated program of advancement.

During the current year, four of the major utilities have been carrying on a national advertising program offering the opportunities of the area to the nation. There have been many requests for locations for industry. Shortage of housing and materials for construction have held the benefits to a minimum. When these handicaps are removed there should be a program sponsored by the major agencies that benefit from increased business opportunity to acquaint the country with the values of northeast Illinois. In the meantime, there should be close cooperation with all local organizations in producing a conscious minded community for betterments. Within a few years all the people in our area would then become selling agents for the benefits to be obtained here. Such programs have borne fruit in other areas.

Tinley Park Wins Over MT. Greenwood Ties For First Place

The Tinley Park Southwest Suburban Baseball team scored a decisive victory over Mount Greenwood team on Sunday at Memorial Park, Tinley Park. In a game packed with good play by both teams and a beginning which promised a close score, the Tinley Park team took charge of the situation and by the end of the third inning had proven that they were able to give a good account of themselves in any ball game.

The oft repeated attempt of the Mount Greenwood players to steal second base was nipped in the bud each time by Parks the Tinley catcher. His peg to second resulted in four put outs and only one attempt succeeded. A back hand catch of a hard hit ground ball by Boerner early in the game with the perfect throw to first base to put the runner out was disheartening to the opposition.

Ullrich pitched all the way showing at all times definite control of the situation. Never was he in serious trouble with the batters of Mount Greenwood. When the game ended Tinley Park was on the long end of the score with six runs to four.

Tinley Park, beaten a week ago by Evergreen Park, is again tied for first place due to the fact that Evergreen Park lost to Orland on Sunday. This brings the league standing back into a tie for first place for the second round with Tinley being tied with two other teams. Next Sunday Tinley Park goes to Worth for a game which should keep the spectators on their toes all the time. With the spirit of the Tinley preparation for the special music for the Sunday morning service; Saturday evening they picnicked at the Dunes in Indiana; and James Paddock, a member of the group, led the meeting at the church Sunday evening.

Tinley Park Independent Baseball team split a double header last Sunday at Phoenix before a large crowd which saw two good games highlighted by brilliant pitching for both teams. In the first game Baptiste pitching for Tinley Park had to go ten innings before his mates drove in the winning run to give Tinley Park the first game by a score of 3-2. Phoenix tied the score at two all in the seventh with a triple and single but Baptiste tightened and Phoenix failed to score again. Peterson pitched for Phoenix and kept 10 hits well scattered, however he was relieved in the tenth inning and Polanski came in to pitch and retired the side.

The second game was a pitching dual between Swanson of Tinley Park and Polanski for Phoenix. Each pitcher gave up two hits but two errors by Tinley Park in the second game, gave Phoenix 1 run and that proved to be the winning run as Tinley failed to score, so the final score showed Phoenix 1 run 2 hits as against no runs and 2 hits for Tinley. Swanson the losing pitcher only allowed two hits and struck out 13 Phoenix batters, but several errors led to his downfall. Polanski pitching for Phoenix also pitched good ball and had good support from his mates when it looked like Tinley was going to rally.

It was very gratifying to see such a large turnout at Phoenix. The crowd was quick to recognize good players on both sides and Phoenix is certainly to be congratulated for their loyal support to their home town boys, as Tinley Park folks, let's not be outdone next Sunday when our boys meet the Midlothian team here at home and turn out and give your support and pull for a win Sunday, August 18.

Orland Park Wallops Evergreen Park

Sunday, August 11, Orland Park defeated Evergreen Park 8-3, thus enabling Orland to move into a 1st place tie with Evergreen Park, Worth and Tinley Park.

Orland scored 3 times in the 2nd, and 2 in the 3rd, to make it a rout. Art Henke was the winning pitcher but needed help from Les Rump in the 4th. Rump held the visitors scoreless the last 5 innings. Next Sunday, August 18 Orland will play at Posen. In a previous meeting of the two teams, Orland won 10-0. This game will start at 2:30.

Despite every effort, the pipeline company which supplies natural gas to this area has been unable to obtain steel for additional construction before next winter. Due to this, plus the large increase in home use of gas . . .

Gas for New Space-Heating and Industrial Uses Must Be Restricted

TO PROTECT THE SUPPLY TO HOMES AND ESSENTIAL NEEDS

it became necessary to ask the Illinois Commerce Commission for authority to limit the delivery of gas as follows:

Space Heating. Delivery of gas for space heating during this emergency will be limited to (1) premises gas-heated last winter or those in which gas equipment was installed or being installed as of July 16, 1946, and (2) new homes completed or under construction as of same date, in which gas heating had been installed or specified.

Industrial. No delivery of gas to any new industrial customer who can reasonably use a fuel other than gas, nor to any new customer or additional load of an existing customer exceeding a specified amount.

In addition to the above restrictions on connecting additional loads, when necessary to safeguard the supply of gas to homes and to protect community health and safety, reduced deliveries of gas for industrial and commercial uses will be made effective during extreme winter weather, and residential customers will be called upon to hold their use of gas to a minimum.

Delays in carrying out the expansion of pipelines to bring additional natural gas to the area which had been planned for this year, plus the large increased demand for gas for home uses, make these restrictions in connecting additional load immediately necessary.

We sincerely regret the necessity for these limitations in gas service. You may be assured that restrictions will be lifted at the earliest possible moment.

Berry Plants

Both strawberries and raspberries do well on many different types of soil, but produce best on fertile, well-drained ground that receives plenty of moisture and contains lots of humus. Set out both raspberries and strawberries as early in the spring as the ground can be worked. Above all, don't wait until hot, dry weather arrives. Prepare the soil thoroughly, and add manure or grow a green manure crop a year before planting.

Attorney General Of Illinois Advocates Canada and U. S. Unite In One Nation

Attorney General George F. Barrett of Illinois, in a speech made to the Kenora, Ontario, Canada Rotary Club recently, urged that Canada sever her ties with the British Empire, and that the Canadian provinces take immediate steps to seek full statehood in the United States.

"If there was ever any justification for the bond between Canada and the British Empire," Barrett said, "I submit that that justification has long since disappeared. While there may be those who rebel at the suggestion which I make, because of certain sentimental attachments for the empire, I ask you to consider the many sound and practical reasons why this is the reasonable and logical course for Canada and the United States."

The Attorney General continued, "I do not contend for one moment that such a step would be of benefit only to Canada. It is my considered opinion that it would benefit both the United States and Canada in the years to come."

"There is closer kinship between Canada and America than there ever was between Canada and the British Empire, or between America and England," the Attorney said. "We are friends and neighbors not only because of our proximity but also because of the sameness of our backgrounds and traditions. You of Canada and we of the United States come of common stock. Both nations were formed by adventurous and pioneering stalwarts who loved freedom and opportunity and who were willing to make the sacrifices which made it possible for them to attain their objectives."

"We are adrift today in a power-hungry and territory grabbing world. Neither you in Canada nor we in America seek power or territorial aggrandizement. We ask of the world only that we be allowed to continue our peaceful pursuits. If this mutual desire is to be realized, we must be strong not only in our military might but also in natural resources. As one great nation we would be an invulnerable fortress in a chaotic and troubled world, a nation which would be impregnable to attack," Barrett reasoned.

"You have, in Canada, great natural resources, but in the main those resources remain undeveloped. For their proper development there must be vast capital investments. The maintenance of Canada as a separate nation has discouraged the investment of American capital in your enterprises. The incorporation of the Canadian provinces into the United States would immediately make available vast sums of money for the development of your latent wealth.

"You of Canada and we of America should not permit a national boundary line—an imaginary line, if you please—to stand in the way of our own best interests in this modern world," Barrett concluded. "Let us not permit international rivalry to prevent us from taking a step for which there is such a crying need. Let us not ignore a course which is such a natural and obvious one. Let us join hands to accomplish this glorious objective. Let us pray and work and struggle to achieve this end. Let us go forward as one people and as one nation."

Liberal Insurance To World War II Vets

Veterans Administration contact office in Joliet, Room 708 Morris Bldg., 58 N. Chicago St., announces liberalized insurance benefits extended to World War II veterans.

Among the added benefits offered to present and former holders of National Service Life Insurance are endowment plans, single lump-sum death settlements, total disability payments, and the right to name any person, entity or corporation as beneficiary.

Veterans are cautioned, however, that some time will elapse before the change can be put into effect. Procedures must be revised and new forms prepared and supplied.

Mr. Washo, Contact Representative for the VA in Joliet, further announces that now any person who served in the armed forces between October 3, 1940 and September 2, 1945 are now entitled to insurance up to $10,000, veterans with less can apply for an increase at any time.

Veterans of the Mokena area can contact the Veterans Administration office in Joliet regarding insurance or any other VA benefits.

STUDY IN CONTRASTS . . . In connection with the 450th anniversary of founding of Ciudad Trujillo, oldest city in the new world, a recent airview of the city (top photo) shows how the recent modernization program has transformed the ancient city into one of the most modern in Latin America. Parallel to the sea runs Avenida Washington. The shaft is the Dominican Washington monument, dedicated to lasting friendship between the Dominican republic and the United States. In sharp contrast is the street scene (lower photo) showing Ciudad Trujillo at the time when it still was known as Santo Domingo. At that time more than one-third of the nation was "ill-fed, ill-clad and ill-housed."

THE OLD AND THE NEW

New World's Oldest City Stages Anniversary Fete

Moss-covered ruins of some of the first buildings in America stand picturesquely among modern structures, suspension bridges, spacious boulevards, fine hospitals and schools in the oldest city in the western hemisphere, Ciudad Trujillo in the Dominican republic, which on Sunday, August 4, observed the 450th anniversary of its founding.

As a highlight of the fete, a three-masted caravel, modeled after one of Columbus' ships, sailed up the Ozama river to re-enact the founding of western civilization's first permanent site. Wearing late 15th century costumes, sailors moored the ship to a replica of a tree used by Columbus' brother, Bartolome, when he founded the city in 1496.

Share With Haiti.

The original city, named Nueva Isabella in honor of Spain's queen, was located on the south shore of the island which Columbus named Hispaniola. Hispaniola, second to Cuba in size among the West Indies, lies between Cuba and Puerto Rico in the Greater Antilles chain. Sharing the island with Haiti, the Dominican republic occupies its eastern two-thirds.

Long called Santo Domingo, the city was renamed Ciudad Trujillo (Trujillo City) in 1936 after President Rafael Trujillo, in gratitude for his efforts in reconstructing the city along modern lines after a hurricane in 1930 almost completely demolished the city.

Proud of their capital city's long history, the 2,000,000 people of the Dominican republic are even more conscious of its modernity and up-to-dateness. Ruins of the first hospital built in the Americas are a short distance from the sun decks of the city's ultra-modern tuberculosis hospital. The vine-covered arch of the first monastery in America offers an exciting contrast to the modernistic verandas of the Jaragua hotel, reputed to be the finest resort hotel between Miami and Rio de Janeiro. The Cathedral of Santo Domingo, another "first" in the Western hemisphere, is close to a long row of modern government buildings.

FAMOUS TREE . . . Two nuns and a little girl stand at the base of Ciudad Trujillo's famous tree, the old cottonwood to which Bartolome Columbus, brother of the new world's discoverer, moored his ship in founding the oldest city in the Western hemisphere.

Wrecked by Hurricane.

Two violent hurricanes striking 428 years apart each stimulated the community's growth. The first occurred in July, 1502, demolishing the few flimsy buildings of the six-year-old post. The second struck the Dominican capital in September, 1930, a few days after Trujillo became president.

Through most of the 16th century, Santo Domingo thrived as Spain's capital of the western world. Columbus visited it often, even ignoring a royal decree when he stopped there on his last voyage. In accordance with his wishes, he was buried there. Ashes of the great admiral now rest in the Cathedral of Santo Domingo, awaiting transfer to the Columbus Memorial light-house, soon to be built on a high promontory just outside the city as a beacon for ships and planes.

Nobles seeking gold, scientists and explorers, rich, enterprising merchants, flocked to the new world's capital, making it a springboard from which new conquests were launched. Cortes, Balboa, Pizarro, Ponce de Leon, De Soto and others made it the starting point of important voyages of discovery.

Two centuries of decay followed capture of the settlement by Sir Francis Drake in 1586. Spanish interest was diverted to mainland mineral wealth. Internal quarrels, attacks by English, French and pirates thinned the colony to 500 people by 1735.

CHURCH TREASURE . . . Valued at five million dollars, the above church treasure was on display during Ciudad Trujillo's anniversary fete. Included are the original cross planted on the island by Columbus, an altar bell designed by Benvenuto Cellini, famous Italian artist, and other priceless items.

Woman Mail Carrier No Longer An Oddity

SEATTLE.—Accepted among the men in the station and the housewives on her route as a seasoned veteran and a neighborhood fixture, Mrs. Ellen Nermo, substitute mail carrier at the Seattle post office for the last two years, is planning to take civil service examinations for permanent appointment.

Recalling her first day as a letter carrier, Mrs. Nermo said, "I thought one woman was going to faint when she saw me come up the steps. Kids used to gather in knots and whisper when I appeared."

Mrs. Nermo was among the women hired by the Seattle post office when war depleted ranks of carriers.

Her only trouble, Mrs. Nermo insists, was with a housewife after she made a wrong delivery of a letter. "This woman kept lecturing me about the mistake and I took it as long as I could, then told her off," Mrs. Nermo said.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Self-Employment

Approximately 360,000 veterans have received more than $118,000,000 in readjustment allowances for self-employment under provisions of the G.I. bill as of the end of the fiscal year June 30, the Veterans administration has announced.

These self-employed veterans were engaged in farming, independent businesses or in trades or professions. The vast majority of such veterans are engaged in agricultural activities and the remaining enterprises vary from operation of a shoe repair establishment to the practice of medicine or law.

These allowances are available to veterans engaged in full-time self-employment for profit, and if their net earnings for a given month are less than $100, they are paid the difference between the net earnings and $100. The period for which a veteran is entitled to allowances depends upon his length of service in the armed forces, the maximum being 10% months if the veteran has over 9% months of service to his credit.

Questions and Answers

Q. My son has been in the army almost 4 years, spending 31 months overseas. He came back to the states in February, 1946, suffering from a bad mental condition. He is now in jail charged with burglary. Military authorities won't act on the civil laws. He has employed a lawyer and asked for a doctor to check him over. He pled guilty at the preliminary hearing. He has enlisted back in the army for three more years. His bond is $750, but he is unable to furnish bond and must remain in jail until superior court meets in August. He is my sole support. My father is 115 years old. I am 56 and in poor health unable to work. He made an allotment for support. Will it stop while he is in prison? Where can I apply for help for my son? — H. N., Columbus, Ga.

A. I am afraid I cannot give you much help. Your son's attorney should know what is best for him to do. The army says that while a serviceman is in the hands of the civil authorities he is considered away without leave. After three months all allowances are cancelled. Should he be convicted, he will be discharged from the army.

Q. I was in the army 19 months and want to get some information about my discharge, since it is a Section 8. How can I go about getting the $20 a week as I have been out of employment most of the time and the discharge keeps me from getting any decent jobs? — J. F. W., Harrisburg, Mo.

A. Section 8 of the basic army regulations covers a multitude of sins and discharge under that section is neither honorable nor dishonorable. If you received a "blue" discharge would suggest that you write to the office of the adjutant general, war department, Washington 25, D. C., and ask for a review of your discharge. Or you may apply to the nearest office of the Veterans administration and explain to them under what conditions you were discharged and they might waive the discharge since it was made at the convenience of the government.

Q. I am a World War II veteran discharged with service-connected disability and am drawing 100 per cent compensation. I am receiving medical care from my local doctor. Are my wife and daughter also entitled to medical care? — C. R. B., Arab, Ala.

A. No.
Q. How may one go about getting alimony from a veteran who is on retirement pay when she is not sure of his whereabouts? Must she have an attorney and take it to court or can it be settled out of court? — Mrs. L. P., Chattanooga, Tenn.

A. This man is a civilian, out of the army, if he is a veteran and this is a legal case, so advise you consult an attorney.

Q. I was a widow of a Spanish war veteran and I remarried. Could I receive my pension back again if I were to divorce the man I am married to? — R. P., East Peoria, Ill.

A. No. The law says that the pension right of a widow is terminated upon her remarriage and such right may not be revived.

Q. My son, a captain, was killed in action. He was a fighter pilot and was our main support and allotted part of his pay to us. I want to inquire if we would be eligible for a pension. — M. K., Wheatland, Wyo.

A. Both you and your husband are surely entitled to a pension if you were dependent upon your son. Suggest that you apply immediately to the Veterans administration sub-regional office at 1720 Carey avenue, Cheyenne, Wyo., and am sure that you would be entitled to $25 each per month.

Kudzu Saves Soil And Provides Feed

Increasing Use Seen On American Farms

Erosion gullies, once the bugaboo of farming, are succumbing rapidly to a versatile leguminous vine known as kudzu.

In addition to growing vigorously, with proper management, under many unfavorable soil and moisture conditions, kudzu has the advantage of permanency. The crowns, or root system, will remain over a long period of years without replanting, if the vines are not overgrazed.

Kudzu crowns or roots will produce luxuriant and nutritious forage for hogs and other livestock.

When harvested for hay it has a feeding value as high as that of alfalfa, and also provides a nutritious forage for livestock grazing. It is especially recommended for ravines or other sites that are too badly gullied to be used for cultivated crops. It is equally important on more level acreage where it can be cut for hay as well as acting to conserve the soil.

From Dadeville, Ala., comes the report of an increase of 25 bushels per acre for corn that followed the plowing under of kudzu, or 40 bushels an acre. Most corn yields in that section averaged below 15 bushels.

Labor Saving Cart

'Gateless' Cattle Gate

Cattle will not cross this "gate" although it is always open. Photo Lincoln Electric Co.

To make this "gate" dig a hole approximately 8 feet wide, 6 feet across, reinforce all sides at top with 4 inch square concrete slabs, embedding ends of six 5-inch channels for cross supports.

Cut 13 lengths of 2 inch pipe and space 4 inches apart. Weld pipe each side to tops of channels using 3/16 inch rod for mild steel.

Controlling Blackleg

Disease in Potatoes

Crop rotation and seed treatment are the two most important control measures for blackleg in potatoes, according to R. A. Schroeder of the University of Missouri.

Blackleg is an old potato disease caused by a bacteria that thrives in cool damp weather. If dipped in a good seed disinfectant, there will be little infection when the seed is planted on clean land.

Save Bees From an

Insecticide Death

While the dusting and spraying of farm crops must be regulated upon approved practices for each individual crop, in general the use of DDT and other insecticides should be employed before blossoms appear. In general, by following this practice, it is possible to reduce the loss among bees to such a point that it is of no economic importance. Do not spray or use insecticides except upon a given method of procedure.

Enjoyed Week End Tour

Mrs. Wm. Semmler and daughter Adeline enjoyed a very pleasant week end tour to Prairie DuChien, Wis. leaving Chicago last Saturday morning and returning Sunday evening.

The trip on the Burlington Zephyr was restful and the tour of the quaint French town was all conducted, so there was no worry about finding hotel rooms, and plenty of good food. Prairie DuChien boasts of a lovely museum, a grand mansion of 100 years ago, which has been given to the city by the descendants of the Douman family. The trip thru this museum is very pleasant and also the trip on the Mississippi river on the cruiser. The Wisconsin side of the river is limestone and across on the other side of Illinois and Iowa, it is sand stone. Sunday morning the 25 people in this tour were taken to the high hills by school bus. These hills are surely very beautifully wooded and the junction of the Wisconsin and Mississippi rivers make it picturesque. We would recommend this trip to anyone who desires a change of scenery and can not afford more time than a day or two.

NEW PLAY GROUND

EQUIPMENT FOR TINLEY

PARK SCHOOL

The PTA of Tinley Park under the Ways and Means chairman, Mrs. Lumbert, has purchased a Climbi-A-Round, and it was shipped from the factory in Wisconsin last week. It is hoped that it will arrive soon.

This is a modern piece of school ground equipment, sturdily built, self supporting and very safe for a large number of children of all ages to play on. It will be erected on the public school grounds as soon as possible.
